Specialty Credentials for Environmental Health Professionals

THE DISTINCT DIFFERENCE

Be recognized for the skills, knowledge and experience you have acquired and that set you apart from others in your profession.

••• BENEFITS

STAY CURRENT, BE RELEVANT.

The environmental health profession is evolving and expanding. Show employers and customers that you have the knowledge and skills to address these new and emerging areas.

Take advantage of the environmental health profession's interconnected nature.

AIHA Registry Programs...

- Recognize lifelong learning and enhance professional certification
- Provide access to a community that shares best practices and solutions
- Promote development of focused expertise in environmental health practice areas

The AIHA Registry Programs are specifically designed to allow you to take full advantage of the training and experience you have gained.

••• ADVANTAGES

A SERIES OF CREDENTIALS FOR SPECIALIZED PROFESSIONALS, TECHNICIANS, AND OPERATORS RECOGNIZE THE VALUE OF WHAT YOU ALREADY DO AND WHAT YOU ALREADY KNOW.

Tangible, third-party confirmation of demonstrated competency within your specialty area.

Whether you have gained your knowledge and skills by formal education, on-the-job training, or hands on experience, registration in environmental health specialty practice areas shows you have demonstrated your competence.

AIHA Registry Programs are built on a body of knowledge developed by independent, competent professionals who regularly review and update the information to keep it current and relevant.

••• OPPORTUNITIES

WHY NOT HAVE A CREDENTIAL THAT LETS OTHERS RECOGNIZE YOUR SPECIALIZED EXPERTISE?

The initial AIHA Registry Programs credentials recognize individuals with expertise in...

- Hazard communication and MSDS author competency
  - Developed in cooperation with the Society for Chemical Hazard Communication
- Professional judgment in exposure assessment
- Real-time detection of potential exposures
- Financial and non-financial value assessment of environmental health projects and programs
- Industrial hygiene chemistry
